Robin Hood Rides Again!

Mother's Day is just around the corner. When I think of Mom, I think of family and togetherness. Why not do something very special and different for your Mom on this Mother's Day weekend; take her out to see the 8th Street Players perform The Legend of Robin Hood, Sort Of. It's a show that the entire family can enjoy.

The 8th Street Players are a group of local people from all walks of life that first banded together in 1993. One reason that the audiences enjoy them so much is the fact that they truly enjoy performing and making people laugh. They have a core group of people that have stayed through the years and they welcome new members any time. Prospective members should know the two most important bylaws of the group. Number one is that being a member of the 8th Street Players should always be fun. Number two is that any member will be expelled immediately from the group if they drink or do drugs. They take pride in maintaining a wholesome family group.

Over the years they have performed at Walla Walla, Pendleton, Imnaha, Joseph, Enterprise, La Grande, and Elgin. This year their play will be held May 10, 11, and 12th at Elgin's Stella Mayfield school auditorium. The Elgin FBLA will be selling concessions during intermission as a fundraiser for their trip to the National competition.

As a non-profit organization the 8th Street Players have donated many scholarships to local kids, helped out with ambulance funds, and many other worth while youth projects. Come on out for a night of good entertainment and know that your money is going to help your community. Tickets are $5.00 for adults and children under 12 are $3.00.

The Legend of Robin Hood's cast members are Ray McVay as the very selfish King John. Gerald Hopkins as the good King Richard. Kevin Silvernail as Sheriff Nottingham who is nicely evil. Claire Sailer as Marian, a very self-centered maiden in love with Robin. Lynn Buffum as Little John, a huge hulk of a guy. Norman Croucher as Friar Tuck, a portly man of the cloth. Samantha Granburg as Witch Waye, a scheming rhyming witch. Robin's merry persons played by: Denise Croucher, as Annie. Karen Davis, as Friar; and Katie Stauffer, as Sue. Caleb Buffum and Nick Shepherd play the palace guards. And Karen Davis and Robin Jurun play the two sellers.

The director is Joanne Shepard. Assistant director and stage manager is Kevin Silvernail. Tickets will be available at the door or you can purchase them in advance from the cast members.

If you enjoy swordplay and feats of daring and for goodness to triumph over evil then come on out to the castle and join us for a night of merriment. You will be sure to leave laughing.
